Nancy Wynne Tells of Miss Wetherill's Engagement.
The Zimmerman Tea Is Postponed This Week.
Various Good Works Interest Various Women

THERE'S nothing slow about the buds this season, is there? Here's Alice Wetherill engaged before she is introduced, and Christiane, before she is married, in August you remember, to Oliver Claxton. Alice Wetherill's engagement to George Emmons, of Boston, was announced yesterday afternoon. The Emmons usually spend their summers in Jamestown, and I understand that it was there that he and Alice met. It was there that another name might be added to "Wetherilltown," so many members of that family spend their summer there.

Alice is very sweet and attractive and very kindly in love. She does not intend to come out now. After all what is the use? When you are engaged you are much more interested in getting together your present than in flying around to a party to another, just because it has been set for the wedding, but it was bird hinted to me that it will be in the early winter.

The death of Mrs. Charles Custis Harrison has thrown a number of families into mourning and the John several deplorable affairs. The cards have been issued for a tea on Friday afternoon this week, at which their daughter, Anna Cecilia Zimmerman, was to have been introduced, have postponed the event on account of Mrs. Harrison's death. Mrs. Zimmerman being a widow of Mrs. Harrison's son. No other card has been issued for parties for the Harrison girls who are to be introduced this season and I doubt now if she will make her debut, as Mrs. Harrison was her grandmother. Perhaps she will go to parties after Christmas, but certainly not now. It's strange, but Ellen Harrison is still debuting this season, and we had a death in the family. First Georgia Martin's and now Ellen Harrison's. Mrs. Harrison's death is a great loss to the city in charitable and civic circles as well as social ones. She was a strong, sensible woman and there will be many who will miss her greatly.

BEFORE I forget it, I must tell you there is not a tea for Sue Goodman today. I don't know where the idea originated that she would be introduced on October 3; but it did and a great many persons thought it was strange they had not received cards. Well, the simple reason they have not is that it is not an introduction. Let me assure you, I understand, Mrs. William Goodman, Jr., Sue's aunt, will give a dance for her, but the date has not yet been settled upon.

Sue is very attractive and full of fun. She is the daughter of the late Samuel Goodman. Her mother died when she was born, Miss Price, and a great bride in her debutante days, married Howard Seaver some years after Mr. Goodman's death. Sue's sister, Mary Goodman, came out a couple of years ago, the same year as Mary Ernestine Appleton, who is a first cousin of the Goodman girls.

I HEAR that a number of women interested in the Seamen's Church Institute building fund and belonging to the Wayne auxiliary of that institute have issued a series of lectures to give money to the Men's Club the first time during its monthly November meeting. Mrs. A. A. Parker, of Stamford, planned the events. The lectures will really be a series of literary talks by William Lyons Phelps, and they will be held in the evenings of October 10, November 2, December 14 at half past 8 o'clock.

WHILE on the subject of charities, let me remind you of the annual animal and market day for St. Francis' Hospital for Convalescents, which is to be held on October 12. The proceeds of the sale of the home in Bryn Mawr, many pounds are interested in this scheme, especially those who make it their work to visit the men and sick at Blackley each week. Many of the patients distinguished from the hospital as well are in great need of change of air and more room before going back to their regular duties. It was for this that the home was started.
